Excellent; Highly recommended

“An integrated, powerful wine from a famous northern Napa Valley site, this wine offers notes of baked plum and cherry wrap around the structured, spicy oak. Lingering accents of a pepper, clove and graphite grace the finish.”

“The 2013 is another monumental Merlot from the Napa Valley’s Three Palms Vineyard, which is a national treasure and may be the finest Merlot vineyard in America. The 2013 exhibits impressive depth and complexity, with aromas of blueberry, plum and cassis, a hint of cedar and graphite, and firm but polished tannins. The length on the palate and the finish are classic for this wine from this vineyard. Drinkable now, but don’t look for it to reach peak maturity for at least another decade.”

“The very best bottlings, such as those from Duckhorn...have the capacity to age famously.”

POINTS

A highly distinctive wine.
Likely to be memorable.

“This very deep and involving wine is definitively Merlot in its unwavering focus on concentrated black cherries, yet it is far more than simply fruity and reveals lovely, sweet oak support with gentle notes of fresh loam. It has plenty of weight but is carefully constructed and matches richness with considerable refinement, and, if it progressively firms and tightens a touch as it crosses the palate, it exhibits remarkable stamina and fruity strength. It serves to remind that top-flight Merlot deserves a special place in the cellar, and it takes its accustomed position among those at the head of the varietal class.”
